Subject: Implementation of the Five Presidents' Report and its impact on non-Eurozone Member States

Wednesday, 21 October 2015 saw the Commission implementing 'Stage 1 of the Five Presidents' Report', which seeks to restart 'economic and social convergence' in the currency union and bring about 'political convergence and democratic renewal'. It will seek to find a solution to the problem of the cacophony of voices which make up the global representation of the currency union. For countries outside of the Eurozone, this might engender a great disparity in which voices are going to be heard in Europe. While many of the nine countries outside of the Eurozone will be adopting the euro in the years ahead, there are still some that will not be adopting the currency in the foreseeable future (e.g. the UK, Sweden and Denmark).

Can the Commission give any guarantees that non-Eurozone Member States are not going to be sidelined as a result of the implementation of this report?
