

Question for written answer E-014619/2015
to the Commission
Rule 130
Tomáš Zdechovský (PPE)

Subject: Cross-border acquisition of driving licences

A scandal erupted recently in which German citizens who had been stripped of their driving licences procured new ones for a fee in the Czech Republic. Since there is a single driving licence across the EU which is valid in all EU Member States, how is it possible that information which could prevent such incidents from occurring is not being shared among the Member States? Does the Commission plan to make the conditions for obtaining a driving licence uniform?