

Question for written answer E-014793/2015
to the Commission

Rule 130

Nadine Morano (PPE)

Subject: Security checks on the immigrants distributed across the EU via the quota system

Shortly after France was hit once again by horrific terrorist attacks carried out in the heart of Paris, it emerged that one of the suicide bombers at the Stade de France held a Syrian passport and had entered the EU via Greece and registered as an asylum seeker on 3 October 2015 in accordance with EU rules. His fingerprints were taken. He was then free to move around the Schengen area and travel to France.

All this shows that – as I have been saying for months – terrorists are entering the EU among the waves of immigrants drawn in by the irresponsible quota system, which is largely to blame for the Paris attacks.

In this tragic context, I would like to call on the Commission to explain in great detail what safety measures it has taken and what investigations it has launched to make sure that the immigrants registered under the EU quota system do not pose a threat to EU citizens.
