Subject: Erasmus

The number of students who come to Ireland to study as part of the Erasmus programme has a considerable impact on the economy through accommodation, living costs and tourism, among other aspects.

1. Could the Commission provide a breakdown of the total intake and output of students who took part in the Erasmus programme for Ireland 2014/2015?
2. I have become aware that if there is an imbalance in the output and intake of students on Erasmus this will result in a cost to the Irish state. Could the Commission give a breakdown of the procedure and costs to the state in the event of such an imbalance in the output and intake of Erasmus students?
