Subject: Readmission and policy on illegal migrants in the EU

In connection with the influx of hundreds of thousands of refugees into Europe in recent months and the growing number of refugees who remain in the EU despite having their asylum application denied, questions arise about the readmission system and the policy on illegal immigrants remaining in Europe. As many as 75% of migrants who are not granted asylum do not return to their countries of origin as they are required to do by law. Migrants who have not been granted refugee status in one Member State travel to another in the hope that their asylum application will be approved there.

1. How does the Commission intend to resolve the problem of illegal migrants in the EU?
2. Is the EU monitoring the situation and the flow of illegal immigrants in the EU, given that people who have not been granted the right of residence are not being removed?
3. What action will the Commission take against illegal immigrants, whose lack of access to social services and education presents a real risk that ghettos of poverty and social exclusion will be created?
