

Question for written answer E-014988/2015
to the Commission
Rule 130
Doru-Claudian Frunzulică (S&D)

Subject: Yemen

The death toll from Cyclone Megh hitting the island of Socotra has been revised to 18, bringing the total number of people killed by the two tropical cyclones to hit Yemen this season to 26, as of 11 November.

An estimated 3 000 families remain displaced on the island of Socotra, while food warehouses containing food items delivered after the first tropical cyclone, Chapala, have been damaged. Lack of communication and restricted access to the affected areas make it difficult to assess the number of people in need.

Is the European Union providing humanitarian assistance to the Yemenite people affected by the cyclone?